

1. Introduction

The Charity Commission states that charity trustees should regularly review and assess the risks faced by their charity in all areas of its work and plan for the management of those risks. Risk is an everyday part of charitable activity and managing it effectively is essential if the trustees are to achieve their key objectives and safeguard their charity's funds and assets. Setting a risk framework allows trustees to:

- identify the major risks that apply to their charity
- make decisions about how to respond to the risks they face
- make an appropriate statement regarding risk management in their annual report

2. Common types of risk

The Charity Commission indicates that risks broadly fall into five categories:

- Governance risks
- Operational risks
- Financial risks
- External risks
- Compliance with law and regulations

3. Managing risks

The main strategies used by the Group to manage risk are:

- Avoiding the activity giving rise to the risk, for example stopping an activity or service
- Trustee review of activities/events to ensure control measures are appropriate for the level of risk
- Management of Group activities through controls or use of policies

Inevitably there will be risks that are known not known (“unknown risks”) and only come to light when an issue or event occurs. Should a new issue or event occur, the Trustees will review and evaluate if risks are of sufficient magnitude to be added to Appendix A.

Where risks are to be included in Appendix A, a Risk Level is given as one of High, Medium or Low. The level is a consideration of the identified controls measures being in place and effective and taking into account both the probability of the event occurring AND the impact of the event occurring.

4. Assessment of our risks

Appendix A sets out the main risks identified by Trustees for the Group and the controls deployed to mitigate those risks.
